Antonio Martinez II: I was diagnosed with type 2 diabetes in 2002 and I basically followed all the recommendations... On metformin. After a number of years graduated on to Janumet. And in the March 2014 I was in San Juan Puerto Rico on a legal matter and I developed really an unusual chest pain that I'd never experienced before.

The best way I can describe it was like someone put a rock on my sternum. And I thought... it was just very strange. And I went to try to get some medication... maybe it was something intestinal or whatever. I thought... I didn't feel right.

The pain never went away and I did something that was thought to be pretty crazy; I called the airline and I asked on the next immediate flight to go back to New York.
