

PREVIEW_ John Mahoney - Interview (FL FEB 2017) 2

John Mahoney: It's kind of strange in the community, you obviously know people who make it five years down the line because you're still around, but it's actually kind of shocking how many people you know that, you know, don't.

And it's kind of a bit upsetting when you see how many people that were just really, really good people that just aren't here anymore. And it's a bit scary when you see it, because it's like, you know, someone is vibrant and then they are not and then they are gone.

And the five-year mark is really important but I know people who have made it five years and something happens. Of course. And you know, so for me... I look at it like, "What can I get out of life now? What can I do for people in my life to make it better? And what the future will tell?"

It's hard to know. But what I can say is I know it's going to feel great to get there. That's important.